CENTRAL'S FLYER 4 MINUTES AHEAD.

Four minutes ahead of time, at 9.26 this morning, the Twentieth Century Special reached the Grand Central station, 19 hours and 56 minutes out

At no time on the 980-mile run was the train behind the 20-hour-from-New-York-to-Chicago schedule.

The trip demonstrated that the train can be run on time every day in the year, and that a 20-hour train is not the limit of speed. There were six cars in the traincombination baggage and buffet car, a forty-six passengers on board when the train reached New York, about the average carried on the trip. Through Indiana, on good stretches o Through Indiana, on good stretches of track, some fast running was done. Passing Rolling Prairie in that State the Twentieth Century Limited was running at the rate of a mile in forty-two seconds. This rate was kept up for three miles. Mr. Vanderhook, of Chi-cago, a passenger, was on the locomo-tive at the time. He got off at the next stop.

The run from Albany was made in hours and 51 minutes, at an average eed of 50 miles an hour.

PENNSY'S FLYER MADE UP LOST TIME.

The record made by the New York Central flyer from Chicago was equalled by that of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is also scheduled to carry pas-sengers from New York to Chicago every day in twenty hours.

The Pennsylvania train reached Jersey City this morning four minutes shead of time, drawn by an ordinary passenger locomotive, and when Engineer Martin Lee climbed down to feel the bearings he looked no different than if he had just pulled in an accommodation from Newark.

The Peansylvania route between New York and Chicago is not as long in writes as that of the New York Central, but it is long in mountains. The grades are heavier over most of the route and the task of getting a fast train over the ground more difficult. At times it is Gecessary on the Pennsylvania run to take a shy at a mile a minute speed for long stretches in order to make up for time lost on heavy mountain grades.

The trial of Sergt. Churchill for neg he East Fifth street precinct, Inspecto cross complaining, was resumed before Commissioner Partridge to-day. Sergt Thurchill went on the stand in his ow

He said that when he took charge the precinct, he had ninety-three mer under him, twelve of them in plain to No. 5 Mine and were given shelter clothes. Inspector Cross visited him and was shown a list of suspected dis-orderly houses. The Inspector admitted, Churchill swore, that he knew nothing about the precinct.

"I saw the Inspector in February o this year at his office," said Sergt. Churchill. "He told me that the Com missioner wanted the dives on the Bow ery closed and had ordered me to get evidence of proprietorship. The In-spector said his own men would get evidence of disorderly acts.

"I didn't like this scheme, because t put me in the Inspector's power. I went to Chief Inspector Cortright and asked his advice. He told me I had better obey Inspector Cross.

"I went ahead and got the evidence he wanted and then my staff of plain clothes men was reduced to six. I protested, but it did no good. The night my staff was reduced twenty-eight disorderly houses that I had closed in the precinct began to do business again."
"How did the tip get out so quickly?" asked the Commissioner.
"There are more tipsters and stool pigeons in that precinct than in any other corner of the earth," replied Sergt. Churchill. "It is almost imposible to keep secrets from them."
Commissioner Partridge expressed surprise when Sergt. Churchill testified that he had asked Inspector Cross on five different occasions for new plain clothes men, as his own men were known all over the precinct. All of his applications were ignored, he said. Finally he had to hire private detectives.

Records of the Court of Special Sessions were produced by the defense. These records showed that nearly all the places raided by Inspector Cross, the existence of which was the basis for the charges, had previously been raided by Sergt. Churchill.
